SURGE OF POWER: WHERE THERE'S SMOKE

SYNOPSIS

Enjoy the latest installment of the Surge of Power indie superhero movie franchise known for having lots of celebrities from the sci-fi and superhero genres! Where There's Smoke follows Surge as he teams up with guest superhero, The Smoke (former pro wrestler Eric Moran), as they uncover a mysterious plot of the villain group called The Council.

Welcome returning stars, the late Nichelle Nichols (Lt. Uhura from Star Trek) and Robert Picardo (The Doctor from Star Trek: Voyager) sharing the Omen role, Bruce Vilanch (comedian and award show writer) as Janus, Shannon Farnon (Wonder Woman from the Super Friends cartoon) as MAVIS, Michael Gray (Billy Batson from the SHAZAM! TV show) as Will E. Bee, Joseph Culp (Doctor Doom from the 1996 Fantastic Four movie) returning as Spade, the leader of The Council.

Who is Falling Apple and what is her role in The Council's nefarious scheme? Struggling from a lifetime of trauma, Falling Apple has discarded her civilian life as sweet and innocent Chai Appuru for a gritty life full of anger and resentment as she seeks to exact revenge on those she believes killed her father when she was a child.

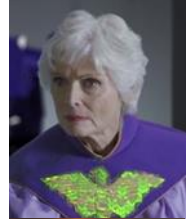

After leaving New York from their last adventure, Surge and MAVIS are heading back to Big City when attacked by Janus, crash landing in Philadelphia. With MAVIS out of commission, Surge is on his own to find The Smoke, learning they have starkly divergent crimefighting styles. Forming an uneasy alliance, they learn about Falling Apple and track her to Chicago, curious about the crystals and chemicals she is stealing, wondering about the involvement of The Council, who have been long-time adversaries of Omen. But is Falling Apple's agenda aligned with The Council's goals? Where do her loyalties lie?

Watch as Omen guides Surge in recruiting more "champions" to form a superhero team to face The Council's threat. Can these unlikely champions find any remnant of the endearing Chai left in the dark and hardened Falling Apple before the entire Chicago area is in ruin?

In addition to our returning celebrities, we welcome new stars to the Surge of Power family: Tim Russ (Tuvok from Star Trek: Voyager) as Mortrigard, Sam J. Jones (Flash Gordon from the 1980 Flash Gordon movie) as Ace, John Davey (Captain Marvel from the SHAZAM! TV show) as General Benjamin Washington, Kevin Caliber (Superman in season one of the Supergirl TV show) as Grok, Chase Cortese (Dybsky in the Play by Play TV series) as Kid Dynamo and introducing Stephanie Ahn as Falling Apple!

CELEBRITY PERFORMANCES BY

NICHELLE NICHOLS is best known as Lieutenant Uhura in Star Trek (the original series) but is near and dear to us playing the wise and powerful Omen for 20 years! Nichelle continues her role as the regal Omen in posthumous performances. Omen may seem like she operates behind the scenes, but steps out when necessary to guide Surge, cinema's first out gay superhero, as he finds straight allies.

ROBERT PICARDO, China Beach, The Wonder Years, is best known as The Doctor, the emergency medical hologram on Star Trek: Voyager. Robert returns, sharing the role of Omen with Nichelle as the male persona of our sage superhero, adding to the complexity of who and what Omen is and "their" history between the superheroes and supervillains of an earlier generation.

BRUCE VILANCH, standup comedian who is best known for his years on Hollywood Squares is also a 6-time Emmy Award-winning writer for the Tonys, Grammys and Emmys. Bruce returns as Janus, the snarky artificial intelligence virus and member of The Council that took control of the Surgemobile. This elusive and mischievous electronic virus adds to the chicanery when heroes and villains clash.

SHANNON FARNON is best known for her portrayal of Wonder Woman on the Super Friends cartoon from 1974 to 1983, but also has a long career in TV and commercials. Shannon returns as M.A.V.I.S., the spunky yet motherly artificial intelligence of the Surgemobile. Unbeknownst to Surge, MAVIS has a deep connection with Omen that is unwittingly revealed because of Janus' attack.

MICHAEL GRAY is best known as Billy Batson from the SHAZAM! TV show and the adult animated spy sitcom, Archer. Gone are his days of yelling "SHAZAM" to summon magic lightning to become Captain Marvel, but Michael has a spark in his presence as Will E. Bee, field reporter for Big City News, who also has a past life with Omen, this time revealed to have powers of his own.

JOSEPH CULP is best known as Doctor Doom from the 1996 Fantastic Four movie. Joseph returns as Spade, rigid leader of The Council, a supervillain community becoming more active, with each confrontation revealing more history between The Council and Omen's former life with a hero team called The Sentries. Spade unwaveringly prods Falling Apple along their plan.

SAM J. JONES is best known as Flash Gordon from the 1980 Flash Gordon movie and his hilarious performances in the recent Ted movies by Seth McFarland. Sam joins us as Ace, seen for the first time as a member of The Council, stepping out and joining forces with Spade. Ace has been developing Falling Apple as a protégé of The Council, with high hopes Falling Apple will make him proud.

JOHN DAVEY is best known as Captain Marvel from the SHAZAM! TV show having worked side-by-side with Michael Gray for two seasons. John joins us as General Benjamin "Benny" Washington, the wise godfather to The Smoke in his alter ego as Corporal Aaron Volpacchio. Benny joined Aaron on the fields of battle in earlier years unwittingly leading to Aaron's start as a superhero.

TIM RUSS is best known for his role as Tuvok, the stoic Vulcan bridge member from the TV show Star Trek: Voyager. Tim joins us as a new character, Mortrigard, who also has history with Omen on their former hero team, The Sentries. After eons of conflict, there are but a few Sentries left, with their powers waning, hence enlisting Surge and other new "champions" to join the fight for truth and justice.

ERIC MORAN is a former United States Marine known for his years as a professional wrestler and more recently his recognition in the cosplay community as The Smoke. Eric joins us as guest superhero, The Smoke, a tough and charismatic superhero not afraid to kill his adversaries – a trait that causes friction with Surge. Can they overcome their differences to confront The Council?

KEVIN CALIBER THOMSEN has many movies under his belt but joins us for portraying Superman during the first season of the recent Supergirl TV show. Kevin portrays Doctor Raymond Richards, the homophobic half-brother of Professor Ronald Richards who assisted Surge in his first adventure. Raymond is clearly perturbed at Surge due to Surge's history with his half-brother, yet Raymond steps in, fashioning his Grok persona.

OMEN

Nichelle Nichols (1932-2022) has been playing Omen in the Surge of Power movies since 2004. She appears in all Surge of Power projects. While she has an iconic legacy as Lt. Uhura in the Star Trek franchise, she now has two decades in her superhero persona as the mysterious and magical Omen.

Nichelle was always a delight on set, gracious to the crew and other cast members and happy to be part of our projects. Just as she was pioneering in her Uhura role on the bridge of the Enterprise as a black woman respected on the ship's crew, Nichelle appreciated our endeavor to bring cinema's first out gay superhero to the big screen, hence her continuing to reprise her role as Omen with us.

Please enjoy a posthumous performance by Nichelle Nichols in Surge of Power: Where There's Smoke. Despite her passing, Nichelle will appear again as Omen one more time in our next adventure.

INDIE HERO-VERSE

While we have our own Surge of Power characters, we welcomed other independent creators to link their universes with ours, creating a cinematic "Indie Hero-Verse, which began in Surge of Power: Revenge of the Sequel, when Nichelle's Omen viewed other potential "champions": Knight Seeker from Seeker Entertainment, The Smoke from XMoore Studios, Photon from Alpha Dog Productions, and Pink Hammer from Baker Comics.

We took our next big step with the crossover event, Surge of Dawn, where the magical vampire, Dawn, from the award-winning web series, Alex Fernandez's Dawn by Pajarito Productions, joins MAVIS and Surge to fight another protégé of The Council, crossing many characters from Pajarito Productions into the Surge of Power world.

We further our Indie Hero-Verse in Where There's Smoke with The Smoke returning, a cameo from Knight Seeker, and characters joining from the Cinemason WhiteFire universe – Dark Huntress and Ace Redfire.
